COULDN'T STAND DAZZLE OF THE GREAT WHITE WAY

Charlie Chapock of Belle Vernon, a farmer by occupation, came to town yesterday to see the sights of our big city. He was so bewildered by our great white way that he stopped in every bar room in town to see if the inside was as nice as the outside. After he had partaken of some of the tanglefoot that the bars dispensed, he was not able to walk, and consequently he landed in the cooler. This morning he was fined $2.00 and costs or three days to the street. He had to take the sentence on the street on account of a lack of funds.

E. V. Morris of Birmingham, Alabama, was the next prisoner to face the burgess. He was charged with selling jewelry without a license. He was making a house to house canvas and stopping people on the street. When arrested by the police he said in his slow southern drawl that if there was any complaint about him, he would leave town instantly, and that the ring he was selling was a very inferior one, with each purchase the buyer was given a book as a premium. He was fined $5.00 and costs or $7.00 for the offense. When informed of the sentence he said that the three days' rest in the cooler was what he needed to recuperate before leaving for the south.

Paul Siminosky of Third street, was charged with abusing his wife. It appears that Paul came home late last night and when his wife started to scold him for keeping late hours, he pulled her hair and punched her several times. She escaped from the house and called the police. He was fined $5.00 and costs or $7.00 or five days in the street. He had to take the latter.

Can't Get Ford's Fast Enough

R. T. Dale, manager of the Shaw Motor company has sold the last car in his show room and is awaiting the arrival of a car load in order to make deliveries. The Ford factory is sixty five hundred back in deliveries and agencies all over the country are embarrassed for cars. Mr. Dale states that he could deliver fifteen cars in this territory this week were it possible to get them. He hopes to be able within a few days to make several deliveries, but no definite time can be set.

Will Pay Reward

The reward of $1,000 offered by the county commissioners for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Jacob K. Blank will be paid in the near future. There are several claimants for the reward. The decision of the Supreme court affirming the conviction of Harry E. Filler blasted his last hopes for securing another chance before a jury.

"The Famine," "The Bottomless Pit," "Coals of Fire" featuring Vivian Rich and William Garwood, "The Volunteer Fireman," a Keystone comedy are some of the good pictures at the Star theatre today. 1t

Chas. Shrader in Detroit, Michigan

It is understood that Charles S. Shrader who left here about three weeks ago very mysteriously, leaving his contracting business unsettled, has located in Detroit, Michigan, and is engaged with a contracting firm. The news is supposed to have reached Monessen through a former Monessen man now located in that said city who is supposed to have seen Mr. Shrader.

George S. Shrader, the father, has taken charge of affairs and it is understood the business is in much better shape than was first thought. The contracting business will go on unmolested and Mr. Shrader says no person will lose despite the actions of his son.

Baseball

Through the splendid pitching of Lafferty and opportune hitting in the first and third innings, the St. Leonard's Lyceum base ball team won their first game of the season from the Charleroi Independents by the score of 6 to 5. The Lyceum scored 6 runs to their opponent's none in the first three innings, and this 6-run lead, coupled with the intense heat and the fact that it was their first game, made them play rather listless ball through the remainder of the game. At least 4 of Charleroi's runs were handed to them. The work of King on short and Joyce behind the bat were pleasing features of the game. Next Saturday the Lyceum will play the Belle Vernon Athletics, one of the fastest amateur teams in this section at Page park. Game starts at 3:30 p. m. No admission. Everybody welcome.

MURDERER ESCAPED THE LAW FOR ELEVEN MONTHS

In custody of State Trooper Harry E. Swartz of Troop A, Robert Murray, 24 years old, of West Newton, was taken to jail at Greensburg Sunday night and lodged in jail after eluding the hand of the law 11 months.

Murray was arrested at Des Moines Iowa, by the police of that city who happened to recognize him as he was driving an ice wagon. Murray is wanted for the murder of Ross Steiner, 45 years old, a printer of West Newton, on May 22 of last year. The night of the crime the man Murray, who is a coal miner by occupation, made a spectacular escape. In the confusion following the shooting Murray made his get-away and hid for many days in old coal workings in the vicinity of West Newton. Finally he managed to make his way west and for the past 11 months has worked in various capacities. Several times the police of Iowa and Nebraska reported sighting the man, but always Murray, seemingly smelling pursuit, managed to elude the officers. Forced into the open, Murray was recognized on the driver's seat of an ice wagon and arrested and the state police notified. The alleged murderer waived extradition and State Trooper Swartz was sent to Iowa to bring back the prisoner.

Steiner died under particularly tragic circumstances in May of last year. Hearing confusion in the road outside his home, Steiner went out on his front porch. A band of rowdies, among them Murray, seemed to be engaged in pulling palings from his fence. Steiner turned a small pocket searchlight on the crowd and this action angered Murray. Words were exchanged and Murray fired five shots, one of them taking effect in Steiner's right leg under the knee, severing an artery. Before a doctor could be summoned. Steiner bled to death in the arms of his aged mother, Mrs. James Steiner, who made her home with her son. The shooting occurred at 10 o'clock at night.

Bijou Sold

J. B. Scanlon, who for the past year has been the owner of the Bijou theatre, yesterday sold his place of business to A. J. Morrell of Jeannette, the new owner taking immediate possession. Mr. Morrell is a practical show man, having been in the show business for the past two years at his home town. Mr. Harry Joy of Jeannette, will act as manager for Mr. Morrell. The new management will secure the best photo plays that can be had and will insure a good show every day.

Boys Can All Have Gocycles

Every boy in town will want a go-cycle. The go-cycle is the newest coasting apparatus on the market. It beats the roller skate for amusement exercises, and is a safer and better instrument. There is only one place in town where the go-cycle can be had and that is at the Independent office. The go-cycle is not for sale, it is only an easy subscription proposition. The boy who gets three two months' subscribers, or two three month subscribers or one six month subscriber and pays 25 cents will be rewarded by getting a go-cycle. Any boy or girl is eligible to enter and as soon as the work is done come direct to the Independent office, pay the money and the go-cycle is yours. You can have loads of fun coasting. No need to wait until snow comes to coast. Any down grade will furnish a place for the go-cycle. Enter now and get your cycle and beat the other fellow. See them on display in the Independent window.

An Editorial Essay

Editor of the Independent: Say why do you do this sort of thing? On one page you publish a Billy Sunday serial that is intended to uplift, and on the next page you run the sickening details of a Willard-Johnson disgraceful knock-out. You also run locals of saloon keepers and Sunday school teachers right together

Why do you try to be everything, why don't you decide to run a newspaper for uplift or the other kind? Take a stand one way or the other.

Yours Disgustedly, —B. H.

The answer:

We had a notion to fire the above in the waste basket, but decided since the shots were so hot, we'd better come out in self defense, or the above esteemed reader—as well as a few sympathizers, might think we had no defense.

Listen, brother. The Independent is like a street car or jitney bus, they carry everybody home from their work; the Independent carries the happenings of the town, state, county and nation to everybody.

The street car does not refuse the nickels of a loafer or a preacher or a saloon keeper. They are all the same to that concern, no difference where they come from, and the motorman's political views are not expressed by the arguments of the heated passengers on the front platform.

Get the point?

A newspaper serves the public and gives the public what it demands. There is a demand for what appears in these columns from Billy Sunday down to the prize fight.

The gentlemen who hang out at the pool room and place bets on the Johnson-Willard fight are not interested in the amount of converts Sunday is getting in Patterson, N. J. They don't care a rap about Bill or his lingo, but they like the Independent because it publishes a variety of news, because it chronicles a prize fight with the same interest that it runs the Sunday serial. The advertiser then likes the paper because it is broad in its views, because everybody reads it and this makes it a business proposition.

The Independent is a public utility that carries the news to the people fresh every day. There are no whiskers on the happenings in these columns. The Independent can no more attempt to edit or censure or dictate to the public what it shall read, and what it shall not, than the street car shall dictate who rides on it or what sort of clothes the passengers wear.

The Independent for a penny a night covers the city, state, county and nation, tells you the important things that happen, brings from the corners of the city and the valley all the events, wraps them in type, and places them on more white paper than you can buy for a cent in the open market and lays it on your front porch for one cent. What do you want, the earth?

Is there another business that can approach that for price, for magnitude of service or quality of goods?

A newspaper is the most expensive commodity sold; it is sold in the hottest competitive market in the world, and it is the only commodity on the market that is sold to the consumer for less than it cost. One copy of the Independent would cost $500; 10 copies would cost $50 each; a hundred you could get down to $5 and so on; but it is only the number of papers sold and the advertising that enables any paper to live, and only by giving to every class in the city what it wants, can a paper secure the wholesale patronage and thereby the advertising support that enables it to make a profit.

A newspaper does more for the public for nothing than any other business. The paper gives you a dollar's worth for a penny; it uses miles of valuable space for your petty chronicles; it is an information bureau, a dispensary, a sanitarium, a police headquarters, a fire department, and a washing place for the dirty linen of the human family, and if it makes 3 per cent. a year on the initial investment, everybody concerned is surprised, pleased, delighted and puffed up.

No editor runs the sort of a paper he wants to run; Rev. Sheldon, down in Kansas some 17 years ago, ran a paper much advertised as the sort of a paper Jesus would run. It ran one day, and it was not at all the sort of a paper we imagine Christ would conduct, even at that.

The newspaper profession has more problems, fewer encouragements; is open to more criticism and receives less financial reward than any other profession or craft, and yet a lot of folks imagine that the newspaper gink has one long, soft snap, and that he publishes the things he does because those are the sort of things he desires to print

All of which shows that the public on the average knows considerably less than nothing at all about a newspaper.

If things appear in the Independent you do not like, be sure that a hundred folks have shown they wanted that type of thing or it would not have been published. And when you see a thing in the Independent that leads you to arise in your delight and shout "Fine business," be sure that a hundred folks within a mile of you will about that time be damning the Independent fervently for the same article.

You cannot please everybody all the time, but you have to come nearer it in the newspaper business than in any other business yet invented, and the paper that does not reach and hold about every class in its field, is doomed to death and defeat.

And at that, we cheerfully admit that we make a lot of Lone Head Blunders; so do you. So does everybody.

"I Don't Feel Good"
That is what a lot of people tell us. Usually their bowels only need cleaning. Rexall Orderlies will do the trick and make you feel fine. We know this positively. Take one tonight. Sold only by us, 10 cents.

CHICAGO NOW HAS A NEW MAYOR

(Special to the Daily Independent)

Chicago, Ill., April 26—William Hale Thompson today takes office as mayor of Chicago, succeeding Hon. Carter Harrison. The inauguration of Mayor Thompson brings the Republicans again into power in municipal affairs. The ceremony of inauguration will take place this evening. Mayor Thompson has had an interesting career. He was born in Boston in 1869 and was a newsboy before going west to make his way. As a cowboy and brakeman in the west, he built up a robust constitution. He is interested in sports, and is an enthusiastic yachtsman.

According to his announcement, one of the first acts of Mayor Thompson will be an order to the police department to clear the city of crooks. The most severe task that confronts him is the formulation of some basis for settlement of the labor troubles which have tied up the building construction in the city.

POLITICAL LOVE FEAST TONIGHT

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 27—A Republican love feast, called in honor of the birthday anniversary of General Grant will bring to Pittsburgh many Republican leaders who will address the big banquet of the Americus Republican club tonight. Confidence in the outlook for the return of the party to power in Washington will characterize the hand shakings and greetings of the leaders. Senator Boies Penrose will sound the keynote of the dinner, and it is likely that the theme will turn to national affairs, and the subject of leadership on the Republican ticket in 1916.

EAGLES VS. BULL DOGS

The Fourth Street Eagles will play a game next Saturday for the championship with the Bull Dogs and much interest is being displayed by the boys. The star hitters for the Eagles will be Patsy Sappo, George Yoney and Cornelius Stevenson. This team is composed of boys about ten years of age and any teams wanting games will notify Patsy Sappo.

Wagon Out.

The merchants and business men of Monessen are being given an opportunity to assist in the campaign for the Monessen-Charleroi hospital in the boom now being carried on.

The big building for "Ye Old Country Store" was erected Saturday, the lumber being used being donated by the Charleroi Lumber company, and the carpenters donated their services. A number of prominent citizens have offered their services as clerks and everything indicates a successful campaign.

The committees which were appointed to gather the merchandise donated by the merchants of this town were greatly encouraged by the large and liberal donations received.

The sentiment is all for the work now going on and the promoters feel that the citizens of Monessen and vicinity will give their hearty support to the boom now being carried on for the betterment of the local hospital.

The hospital wagon will appear all day Tuesday on the streets of Monessen and will collect the donations for "Ye Old Country Store," which is expected to be the center of attraction at the Hunter Shows starting May 1. A complete list of all the donations will appear in a later issue of this paper.

When Billy Sunday Came to Town

SYNOPSIS.

Reginald Nelson, a young Englishman of high birth, comes to this country to win fame and fortune. On the steamer he meets Albert Townley, a minister, Mrs. Graham and her pretty daughter, Joy.

Reginald goes to Bronson, home of his three new acquaintances, where he learns that Joy's father is a leading lawyer, who is the mainstay of a corrupt political ring. He gets a job.

The young Englishman enters the social life of Bronson. He falls in love with Joy, and later discovers that she is engaged to be married to Roland Gregory.

Allan Rutledge, another minister, and the Rev. Mr Townley confer on the evil moral and laboring conditions in Bronson. The reform element meets and decides to have Billy Sunday, the noted evangelist, aid in a "cleanup."

Editor Marchmount offers Reginald a position on his paper. The latter accepts, and later he performs a heroic act in stopping a dangerous runaway.

Nelson starts on his work on the Courier. He begins to investigate the suspicious death of Mae Mobray, a youthful worker in Roland Gregory's factory plant The councilmen and saloon keepers oppose the coming of Billy Sunday.

A tabernacle is built for Billy Sunday, and Reginald, in the columns of the Courier, begins a spirited campaign in favor of the evangelist. Sunday holds his first meeting in Bronson.

Much to the anger of Mr. Graham and Bud McCrea, a councilman, Sunday's work proves effective as an attack on vice. "By the help of God we'll clean up Bronson," says Sunday.

On a Sunday afternoon the reformer makes a powerful attack on gambling and saloons and hypocrisy. He describes saloons as "breeders of lawlessness."

Men and women finally begin to "hit the sawdust trail" leading to Billy's pulpit by the score and kneel in repentance of their sins.

help from the new converts in Bronson. Under the leadership of Allan Rutledge a series of meetings were arranged, and that evening a company, including Reginald Nelson, Edgar Prince and Thomas Marchmount, intended to inaugurate this new and strange evangelism by holding a meeting in Augsley.

"I will go down to Roland's office this morning and see if I cannot persuade him to go with me tonight," said Joy, after a pause. "If he can hear Mr. Prince give his testimony it may be as good as a sermon from Mr. Sunday, because Roland has always been an admirer of Mr. Prince."

"It is a very unpleasant day to be out," answered Mrs. Graham, looking out of the window. The March winds were blowing furiously and the trees were bending before the blasts.

"I will take the street car," responded the girl promptly. "I am not afraid of these March breezes."

In a little while Joy Graham entered the private office of Roland Gregory. The young manufacturer was alone, sitting with downcast head, and before he was able to glance up and see who his visitor was Joy Graham noticed a hardness about his face which was new to her.

"What were you thinking about?" asked Joy, when she had seated herself.

Roland Gregory Turned Fiercely on Her.

She looked closely at Roland as she asked the question, and she saw an uneasy look come to his eyes. But he turned to her lightly and asked, "And what may your thoughts be this morning, my Joy? What is on your mind that you have journeyed down to the office such a day as this?"

"I want to invite you to come with a party of us to Augsley this evening. We are going to hold a meeting there, and I have promised to sing."

He was silent a moment and said a little testily:

"I thought we would get a rest after that clown, Sunday, left town. Are they going to keep up this religious nonsense all summer?"

"Roland, how can you talk so?" responded the girl reprovingly. "You only heard Mr. Sunday speak once, and George Caldwell told me you were almost converted at that meeting."

Roland Gregory turned fiercely on her. "What did George say about it?"

The girl started at his sudden and peremptory question and responded a little tartly: "What's ailing you, Roland? You don't act like you used to do at all. George told me that you almost decided to become a Christian at the meeting you attended. It was that men's meeting when so many of our Bronson men made the start." The girl's voice became kinder as she spoke. Going to the young man's side, she laid her hand on his shoulder and continued: "Roland, I have been praying for you these last few weeks. I am afraid unless you become a Christian I will never be happy as your wife. Won't you come with me to Augsley tonight, Roland?" Joy pleaded with him earnestly, her hand still on his shoulder.

"Who are going?"

"Mr. Prince and Mr. Marchmount and Dr. Gracely and a whole lot of people that you know," answered the girl quickly. "Mr. Nelson is going too. He and Mr. Prince are to make the speeches."

Roland frowned.

"And Vivian Derwent and a lot of the young people from the Normal school are going," continued Joy, not noticing the frown on the other's face.

"I don't want to go anywhere that Nelson goes. I think that young prig is a fine Christian. I have an important business engagement this evening," said Roland Gregory, taking out his watch nervously. "I will let you know this afternoon whether I can go or not."

Near her own home she met Allan Rutledge face to face.

"You will be with us tonight, won't you, Miss Graham?" said the minister.

"Certainly," she responded promptly.

"Mrs. Rutledge, you know, is going to sing tonight," said Dr. Rutledge. "And I think it would be very nice if you and she would also sing a duet. Can you come over this afternoon for awhile and practice?"

"I shall be glad to do so," responded Joy, her face brightening.

"I have a long list of applicants for church membership," continued the minister. "Something like 500 will join our church next Sabbath morning. However, I am sorry to miss the names of your father and of Roland Gregory."

CHAPTER XI.

Joy Graham Makes a Discovery.

ON that afternoon Joy Graham called at the Rutledge home to practice a duet with Mrs. Rutledge.

"I don't know how I will be able to leave the children so long this evening," said Mrs. Rutledge, "but Allan wanted me to go with the rest to Augsley and sing 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' to the people there. I sang it once at a shop meeting in Wellington before Allan and I were married, and he has never forgotten it."

"I will be so glad to hear you sing tonight myself," said Joy with enthusiasm, "but tell me about that shop meeting in Wellington, Mrs. Rutledge."

The minister's wife related the incident to the girl, adding as she finished, "Some day I will tell you a sad tragedy that happened at Wellington. I have not time today, but some time I will tell you. It is about a beautiful young Bohemian girl, Viola Antol, who was killed by her false lover. The sad death of Mae Mobray, one of the girls at the Gregory factory, reminded Allan of the tragedy in Iowa and we were speaking of it not long ago."

"What became of poor Mae's mother?" asked Joy sympathetically.

"Did you not know that the church is supporting her. Poor woman, she is utterly desolate."

Before leaving the Rutledge home Joy Graham called up Roland Gregory on the telephone and asked him if he had decided to accompany her to Augsley. The young man answered in the negative, pleading a business engagement.

It was a happy crowd of crusaders who journeyed that evening to Augsley. The meeting was even more of a success than Allan Rutledge had hoped. The energetic spirit of the ex-baseball star had permeated the entire vicinity of Bronson, and the few church members at Augsley had taken on new life and had widely advertised the coming of the Bronson party. The church in which the meeting was held was the largest in the village, but it was crowded to overflowing and a second meeting was arranged hastily at another church. The songs of Joy Graham and Mrs. Rutledge were listened to with absorbing interest, and as Allan Rutledge heard his wife sing the old, but ever new hymn of trust, "Jesus, lover of my soul, let me to thy bosom fly," he was carried back in imagination to scenes in his ministry in Wellington when he had first heard his wife sing and first began to understand the tremendous power of Christian song.

Edgar Prince, the manufacturer of Bronson, was the first speaker, and his testimony was listened to with the closest attention.

"We business men in Bronson have seen a great light," he began. "If any one had told me two months ago that I would be addressing an audience at a religious service I would have laughed with scorn. But here I am tonight able to bear witness that Jesus can save even a manufacturer. Let Jesus into your hearts, men," he exclaimed, "and he will make your whole life over, as he has made mine in the past few weeks."

He then told how he had first been arrested by a statement of the evangelist, who quoted the Bible where it says, "The wages of sin is death."

"I couldn't get away from those words," he declared earnestly. "I felt that I was a sinner and that my only hope of salvation was in the Saviour."

Thomas Marchmount also spoke, telling of his conversion to Christianity years before and of his long apostacy.

"We have left God out of our lives in Bronson for a good many years, but things have changed. I am happier tonight than I have been in thirty years."

Allan Rutledge then took charge of the meeting, and a call was made for penitents. They began to stream toward the front until full twoscore confessed their sins.

The crusaders returned, astonished and delighted. "Is it not remarkable," said Mr. Townley, who was greatly moved by the talks of the business men. "Is it not remarkable to see and hear such things as we have seen and heard tonight?"

"Ah, Mr. Townley," responded Allan Rutledge, "we need a Billy Sunday once in awhile to remind us of the simplest gospel facts. In the light of Christian history what we have seen tonight is nothing at all unusual when men have really become sincere in their Christian faith."

"But much work still needs to be done in Bronson," remarked Mr Townley.

ADJOURNMENT NOW IN DOUBT

Legislature May Not End Work Before June 1.

TWO BIG BILLS STILL PENDING

Child Labor and Workmen's Compensation Measures Yet to Be Acted Upon by Senate—Full Crew Repealer Now In Senate—Plan For Branch Capitol.

Harrisburg, April 27.—It is a good guess that the Pennsylvania legislature does not adjourn on the day fixed by resolution of the house, May 6. Many say that it will be sometime around the beginning of June before the lawmakers decide to fold their tents and leave the capitol. There is plenty to do yet, and from all indications weeks will be required to dispose of the business at hand.

With local option out of the way, interest centers on child labor and workmen's compensation. Both of these bills have passed the house and are now in the senate. They will go through the upper branch in amended form. The fight on the child labor bill in the senate is in regard to the number of hours a week a child should be permitted to work. Advocates of drastic child labor laws have fixed the hours at fifty-one, while the manufacturers and parents of the children want fifty-four and will do everything possible to block any child legislation at this session unless this request is granted.

SENATOR STERLING R. CATLIN.
Veteran Member of Upper Branch Who Is Always Active.

Governor Brumbaugh stands with the fifty-one hour people. He believes that no child between fourteen and sixteen should work more than that length of time during a week and he is insisting that the Cox bill be put through the senate in the same shape as it passed the house. Manufacturers insist that if the houre are made fifty-one they will be compelled to close their industries to any children under sixteen, and this action would work a great hardship upon thousands of poor people residing in the vicinity of manufactering establishments.

There is another section in the bill prohibiting any boy under twelve from selling newspapers. This is such a nonsensical provision that the senate is sure to speedily eliminate it. Newspaper publishers are a unit in the opinion that a prohibition on the age of newsboys is unjust.

It is thought that the workmen's compensation and employers' liability bills will not precipitate a fight in the senate comparable with that on child labor. There are but a few points to be straightened out, and when this is done the committee on corporations will start the bills through the upper branch.

An important step in the compensation movement was taken last week when the senate passed the Catlin bill to bring the anthracite miners under the proposed new laws. In the absence of this act the compensation bills would not affect the hard coal miners, who at the present time are not supposed to work for coal companies, but for mine foremen certificated by the state. The operators would be free from any liability for accidents due to negligence on the ground that the negligence was caused by state agents and not by the companies. The bill will now pass the house without serious trouble.

Though there are reports that certain members of the senate who were expected to champion the repeal of the full crew bill have decided to take an opposite stand, it is believed the repealer will go through the upper branch. The house vote greatly surprised members of the railroaders' union, who predicted the overwhelming defeat of the Baldwin bill.

The Vickerman amendment to the act creating the public service commission is making good progress and may go to the governor for his approval or disapproval. This amendment takes away from the commission all jurisdiction over public utilities and their relations to cities, boroughs and townships and would confine the commissioners to consideration of cases involving steam railroads and telegraph and telephone lines operating wholly within the state.

Senator Richard V. Farley, of Philadelphia, has introduced in the senate a resolution that would make Philadelphia the branch capital of the state. It is Farley's plan to have the state construct an administration building, probably along the parkway, to house the many state departments that have offices in Philadelphia.

The proposed state administration building would contain offices for the governor, who frequently has business in Philadelphia, and would house the state highway department, the bureau of labor and industry, the state insurance department, the department of health, the state moving picture censor, the live stock board and other state offices now located in Philadelphia.

The Farley resolution calls for the appointment of a commission to investigate the cost of such a structure. At present the state is paying rent for offices now located in Philadelphia, and the sponsors of the plan say that the construction of an administration building in Philadelphia would save the state money in the

A HOT TIME OVER CHILD LABOR BILL

Harrisburg, Pa., April 26—After a fight which lasted all evening, the administration forces in the Senate at midnight succeeded in having the Judiciary Special Committee report the Brumbaugh child labor bill in the shape it passed the house. This would indicate that the Governor will succeed in having his legislation enacted in the form he wishes.

Chairman Charles A. Snyder reported to the Senate that "at this time he was directed by the Judiciary Special Committee to report the child labor bill as committed."

He laid much stress on "at this time." When asked if this meant that tomorrow, when the bill passed first reading, he would move to recommit it, he replied "you will have to see about that tomorrow."

No attempt was made in committee tonight to amend the bill. There was no vote taken on the report, it being agreed the bill would come out as committed.

The situation appears to be that the opponents of the measure are waiting for Senator W. E. Crow to come. They are not sure as to where he will stand. Unless he agrees to help put the amendment that the manufacturers want in, the measure will not be changed. Mr. McNichol expressed himself confident the bill would not be sent back to committee.

When the Judiciary Special Committee met last Tuesday night it was agreed it would reconvene this evening at 7:45 o'clock to act on the child labor bill. Then a majority of the committeemen were supposed to favor amending of the measure to increase the hours of labor from 51 to 54 hours a week and from 9 to 10 hours a day and reduce the age limit of newsboys from 12 to 10 years.

Late this afternoon Chairman Snyder announced that he had a telegram from Senator W. E. Crow saying he was detained in Uniontown and asking that the meeting of the committee be deferred until tomorrow morning. When Senators McNichol and Vare came on the scene about 7:30 o'clock they asked Mr. Snyder to have a meeting of his committee immediately and report the bill as it passed the House. Mr. Snyder insisted nothing should be done until morning.

Messrs. McNichol and Vare who are working with Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh to put the bill through just as it came from the House, set to work for immediate consideration, believing if a meeting were held tonight, it would be possible to put the legislation out of committee without amendment. This would mean a victory for the Governor, as the opponents of the measure would have to make their fight on the open floor to insert the amendment.

Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pensylvania Manufacturers' Association, who is leading the fight for amendments, was about the Senate in conference with Mr. Snyder, but the Schuylkill senator refused to budge.

Finaly Mr. McNichol asked the chairman if he would call a meeting of the committee if 9 of the 15 members signed a call asking for the meeting. Mr. Snyder said that he would. Mr. McNichol circulated a call himself and got the following names: Lynch, Lackawana; Daix, Patton and Smith, Philadelphia; Mills, Bradford; Moore, Allegheny; Thompson, Beaver; Gerberich, Lebanon.

There was a long conference. Finally Mr. Crow called on the telephone. He agreed to a meeting. Those delays prevented a meeting until about 10:40 o'clock.

Every member was present except Mr. Crow. Those present were Snyder, Schuylkill; McNichol, Daix, Patton, Smith, Philadelphia; Kline and Moore, Pittsburgh; Kurtz, Jefferson; Mills, Bradford; Thompson, Beaver; McConnell, Northumberdand; Lynch, Lackawanna; Gerberich, Lebanon; Jones, Lycoming; Dewitt, Luzerne; Tompkins, Cambria.

Detroit Advertises For Policemen

Detroit, Mich., April 27—Tomorrow is the last day for filing applications for the jobs as policemen advertised by the Detroit police department. The department is trying to raise the standard of its police officers, so it was decided to advertise. The character of the applicants had fallen so low that it became necessary to attract husky, honest youngsters and assure them that political pull was not needed to get onto the force.

BETTER BABIES

The crusade for better babies has spread from coast to coast, and taken firm hold of American Mothers. Few women realize how much the ill health of the mother influences the unborn child, both physically and mentally. Women who suffer from mysterious pains, backaches, nervousness, mental depression, headaches, etc., should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, which for nearly forty years has been the standard remedy for these ailments.

MOVIE LEGISLATION

Harrisburg, Pa., April 27—The Daix bill for the regulation of moving picture films and the creation of a new state board of censors, has been amended in a number of important respect by the senate committee on judiciary special and is now ready for consideration on final passage in the senate in a form that is said to be satisfactory to both sides. Perhaps the most important amendment is that which reduces from $2.50 to $1 the fee for the inspection of each film and duplicate thereof.

Other amendments strike out the provisions giving the board of censors "general power and authority to supervise and regulate the display and exhibition of all films," etc., and its authority is specifically limited to preventing the display of films that have not been officially approved. Its powers over advertising also are reduced so as to apply only on "banners, posters and other advertising." The rules the board makes for carrying out the act must be "reasonable" and the right of appeal to court from any decision of the board is provided.

Originally the penalty for violation of the act was a fine of from $50 to $100. As amended it is from $25 to $50. The amendments reduce the proposed salary of the vice chairman of the board of censors from $2,500 to $2,000, and the secretary from $2,400 to $2,000.

MARY'S DOG CAUSES TROUBLE

Will Double Tin Mill Capacity

Washington, Pa., April 27—Completion of financial arrangements for doubling the capacity of the plant of the Standard Tin Plate company of Canonsburg, has been announced here, improvements to be made that will make the plant a million dollar concern. General Manager Louis Follet has announced that the present 12-mill plant, east of Canonsburg, will be enlarged to a 25-mill factory and that the number of men employed will be increased from 1,000 to 2,000.

Contracts for the construction work will be awarded as soon as practicable. It is the announced intention to have the enlargement finished within six months.
